Fellow shaggers, hope summer. Lots of job that Rick and the Wine Tour that The ENO Beach Area at ENO. They put on a real nice 50's Party and one of our own, Mary Gregory tied for 1st. place on Best Costume. We all had a great time! I'm sure you all are counting the days until our Area Luau Party is here on June 13th. Polly and her committee have been working overtime to make sure that you will have a great time, as in past parties, I don't think you will want to miss this one. And if we are not busy enough, the very next week is our 6 club Coalition Party at Thirsty's in Greensboro. See the enclosed flyer for all the information. This is a reward for you supporting and buying the t-shirts from last years shirt sales. See Mary Gregory, if you have any questions concerning this party and to put your order in for this year's coalition shirt. The club has decided to purchase the AED Defibrilator and for those of you that would like to take the training "Absolutely Free", see Joan Kimbro for registration. I hope you all are as excited about all the activities going on in the club as we are. I hope you will volunteer to be on some of these committees and to bring fresh ideas to our club. As you know our Special Olympics Golf Tournament is in our near future. We will need a lot of volunteers and helpers. See Chuck Upchurch and he will be glad to sign you up. Michelle Thomas is now starting to get ideas for the Fun Monday Booth at SOS. So if any of you have ideas or just want to help, please contact Michelle.

It seems like everytime I write this letter, we have more members, friends, and family who has had serious health issues or have fallen on hard times. To all of you, we want you to know that everyone in this club is thinking about you and support you. The outpouring of love and generosity that this club has shown in the past confirms my belief, that we are all just one big family that cares for each and everyone of us.

Keep a smile, things will get better, brighter things will happen in the future.

JUST WHAT IS "SHAG MUSIC" ?

There are a lot of terms that are used loosely out there to describe the music (or subsets of it) that we (Shaggers) dance to and occasionally sip a few beers to. These include "Shag Music", "Beach Music", "Smoothies", "Boogie Woogie", "Bubblegum". Since none of these terms mean the same thing to any to Shaggers, you can imagine how difficult it is for the DJ who gets a request for a "good shag song", where the requested can't give a single title or artist that he can identify as the type he personally associates with "good shag songs".

In fact, there is such a variety of types of music out there that is enjoyed by different people or regions, although they are all legitimate Shaggers, that I am firmly convinced that if a DJ were to compile a list of 100 proven and well know "shag songs", and then ask ten well-versed Shaggers to select their ten favorite songs, that they would generally be in agreement on about 20% of their selections. And there is nothing wrong with that! That is one of the great things about Shag Music, there is something out there for everybody.

So just what is this thing we call "Shag Music"? Personally, after several years of enjoying it after the military transferred me back in 1986, I still can't quite pin it down. Part of the reason is that the music has expanded it's R&B roots to include all types of music, as long as that special beat is there.

As a DJ, this is one of the strengths, and also one of the weaknesses of trying to play "Shag Music" to the various types of people who love it. I call it a strength because no matter what your previous personal tastes in music were before you became a follower of this special dance and music, there is something there for you. R&B, Country, Big Band, and Pop (and we can even say Latin) have been played regularly at popular shag clubs.

It is also a weakness because there are a few out there who firmly believe that "Shag Music" is one and only one style of music. THEIR kind. Now, I have no problem with anyone who enjoys this music. Where I have a small disagreement is with anyone who tries to restrict the sincere enjoyment of this dance by others acting as a censor on the music by trying to pressure the DJ in a given club to play only a particular type of "Shag Music". Being forced to listen to something you really don't like does not ensure that you will learn to like it. More than likely, it merely means that you will find another diversion and location where you will devote your spare time and dollars.

Let's all get trained!

Being forced to listen to something you really don't like does not ensure that you will learn to like it. More than likely, it merely means that you will find another diversion and location where you will devote your spare time and dollars.

I've been told (I wasn't around back in the early days of the Shag, although I sincerely regret missing it) by some that "Shag Music" should be only old hard core R&B as it was "in the beginning". I've also been told by others that what the dance really began with was more of the smooth Big Band sound. Now, I'm not smart enough to determine whose memory has failed them, who has selective memory retention or who is simply misinformed, but it does seem to me that what is important is keeping the numbers who enjoy it growing and making sure that it is not going to die with our generation.

So, as far as I am concerned, I would like to suggest that we stop arguing among ourselves about what is a proper "shag song". I would propose a simple definition. That is, a "shag song" is any one that makes people want to get on the dance floor and start shagging and enjoying themselves.

Having said this, I never doubt for a moment that "shag music" will always have a heavy R&B base, and certain standards will always be heard. But at the same time, let's take advantage of those country, pop, or even Latin songs that have our type of beat. I've been to parties where through "censorship" imposed by either the DJ (certainly not one of our association members) or one of the hosts, only one style of shag music was played. The majority of the attendees/ guests, or at least those who were heard to express an opinion, did not particularly enjoy the experience. My final bit of advice is to give the DJ a request that you would like to hear. Most of us will do our best to work it in as quickly as possible.
